

Any changes to weaken the Wisconsin "no call" list would be terrible . As far as I'm concerned, it's not tough enough. I am a real estate agent and while my industry relies on "cold calling," we have managed to work around the "no call" list in other creative ways. I love not receiving those annoying telemarketing calls all hours of the day. I still receive a few from those companies that refuse to follow the "rules" and insist they remove me from their list. One of these days I plan to start filing complaints against these "losers."

Please reconsider changing this law - keep it in tact or make it even stronger than it is now. Thank You.
